RULES FOR WHIST-PLAYING

Cavendish Closely Followed in the Code Adopted by the National Congress.

Five-Point Games Permissible-A Player Cannot Ask His Partner Whether He Has a Card of a Suit Which He Has Renounced.

Milwaukee Sentinel.

The last business which the American whist congress did before adjournment was the adoption of rules governing the game, as reported by the committee on laws and Legislation. When the rules came up for general discussion several amendments were made to the original text, the most important of which was in connection with Rule 1. This rule prescribed absolutely the number of points constituting a game as seven. It was amended so as to make fivepoint games permissible. The rule which was originally numbered forty-nine, allowing a player to ask his partner whether he had a card of the suit which he had renounced, was withdrawn entirely. Other minor changes were made. Cavendish was followed very closely in drawing up the rules, the only variations being in some of the penalties fixed for an infraction of rules. The rules themselves are substantially Cavendish. They are as follows:

1. Each trick above six shall count one point; the game shall consist of seven points. In case of tournaments, matches and club scores for purposes of comparison, each hand shall be played out, and every trick taken shall be scored.

The above shall be the standard game,

The above shall be the standard game, but players or clubs may, by rule or agreement, provide for other methods it scoring.

2. The penalty for a revoke shall take precedence of all other scores.

3. If an erroneous score shall be proved, such mistake can be corrected prior to the conclusion of the game in which it occurred, and such game is not concluded until the trump card of the first deal in the following game has been turned up.

4. In cutting the ace is the lowest card: 4. In cutting the ace is the lowest card; in all cases every one shall cut from the same pack, and if a player exposes more than one card he must cut again. FORMATION OF THE TABLE.

In the formation of the table those first in the room shall have the preference. If by reason of two or more arriving at the same time, more than four assemble, the preference among the last comers shall be determined by entting, a lower cut giving the preference over all cutting higher. A complete table shall consist of aix, the four having the preference shall play.

6. The formation of the table having been determined, the players shall cut for partners and deal at the commencement of 7. In cutting for partners, the two highest shall play against the two lowest; the lowest shall have the deal and the choice of seats and cards, and must abide by his first selection. If the two lowest cut cards of equal value, they shall cut again for deal. 8. If two players cut intermediate cards of equal value, those two shall cut again, and the lower of the new cut shall play with the original low. 9. If three players cut cards of equal value those three shall cut again. If the ourth has cut the highest card the two owest of the cut shall be partners and the lowest shall have the deal. If the fourth cut the lowest card he shall be the dealer, and the two highest of the new cut shall be

10. At the end of the game, should there be more than four members belonging to the table, a sufficient number of the players shall retire to admit those awaiting their opportunity to play. In determining which players shall remain in, those who have layed a less number of consecutive games shall have the preference over all who have played a greater number, and between two or more who have played an equal number the preference shall be determined by cutting, a lower cut giving the preference over all cutting higher. 11. A candidate wishing to enter a table must declare such intention prior to any of the players having cut a card for the purpose either of commencing a new game or of cutting out.

12. Tables may be formed and partners chosen by agreement except when prohibited by a club rule.

13. Before every deal the cards shall be shuffled and shall be presented by the dealer to his right-hand adversary to cut. 14. The pack must not be shuffled so as to expose the face of any card, nor during the play of the hand.

15. Where two packs are used the dealer's partner shall collect and shuffle the

16. In cutting to the dealer not less than four cards shall be left in each packet. 17. If in cutting or in reuniting the separgte packets a card is exposed, or if there is any confusion of the cards or doubt as to the place where the pack is separated, there must be a fresh cut.

18. When the pack has been presented by the dealer to be cut and has been cut by the adversary in accordance with rules I and 17, should the dealer reshufile the cards he shall lose his deal. 19. The fifty-two cards shall be dealt into four packets one at a time in regular rotation, beginning with the player at the dealer's left, and having been regularly shall be turned up before the dealer. 20. There must be a newideal. 1, if during the deal or during the play of a hand the pack be proved incorrect or imperfect, 2, if any card except the last be faced in the

21. If while dealing the dealer or his partner exposes a card, and neither of the dversaries have touched the cards, the latter may claim a new deal; a card ex-posed by either adversary gives that claim to the dealer, provided his partner has not touched a card. If a new dear does not take place, the exposed card cannot be

22. If the dealer, before or during the deal, looks at the trump card, his adversaries have a right to see it, and may exact a new deal.

23. If the dealer distributing cards, gives more than two cards incorrectly; 2, counts the cards on the table, or the remainder of the pack; 3, places the trump card on the other cards without having turned it up, it is a misdeal, and the deal passes to the next player.

24. If, after playing to the first trick, a player is found to have less than his proper number of cards, and the missing card or cards be found in his adversary's hand, the deal is void; if the missing card or cards be found in his partner's hand, the adversa-ries may consult and shall have choice: 1, of retaining the same hands and rectifying the error by drawing a card or cards; or, having a new deal.

25. A misdeal shall not lose the deal, if during the deal either of the adversaries has touched the cards prior to the dealer's partner having done so, but should the lat-ter have first interfered with the cards.notwithstanding either or both of the adver-saries have subsequently done the same, the deal is lost.

26. Should three players have their right number of cards and the fourth have less than thirteen, and such deficiency be not iscovered until after he has played to the first trick, the adversaries may consult and shall have the choice: 1. To claim a new deal; or, 2, to have the hands played out as they stand, in which case the missing card shall be considered as played to the last trick; but no revoke shall be claimed because of such missing card.

If a pack of cards be imperfect, the deal in which the fault is discovered shall be void, but the previous ones shall hold

28. Any one dealing out of turn, or with the adversary's cards, may be stopped be-fore the trump card is turned, after which the game must proceed as if no mistake had

28. If the adversaries interrupt a dealer whilst dealing, either by questioning the score or asserting that it is not his deal, and fail to establish such claim, should a misdeal occur, he may deal again.

THE TRUMP CARD. 30. The dealer, when it is his turn to play to the first trick, shall take the trump card into his hand; if left on the table after trick has been turned and quitted, replace it face up upon the table.

32. If the dealer, when called upon under the preceding rule to replace the trump card, declares himself unable to recollect it, his highest or lowest trump may be called, and, unless it cause him to revoke, must be played. The call may be repeated, but not changed, i. e., from highest to lowest, or vice versa, until such card is played.

EXPOSED CARDS. 33. The following are exposed cards:

I. The trump card, if left face upward on the table after the second trick is turned

II. Two or more cards played at once.
III. Any card exposed in any manner so as to be seen by apartner, no matter how exposed, whether dropped on the table, thrown on the table, or held above the table, detached or not detached.

34. A card is not an exposed card, when dropped on the floor or elsewhere below the table.

35. All exposed cards shall be liable to be called, must be left face upward on the table, and must not be taken into the player's hand again; the player is bound to play them when they are called, provided he can do so without revoking; the call may be repeated whenever it is the player's turn to play until the card is played. A player cannot be prevented from playing a card liable to be called; if he can get rid of it in the course of play, no penalty remains.

36. If a player leads a winning card, i. e., one better than any his adversaries hold of the suit, and then lead another, or play several winning cards without wait. table, and must not be taken into the play several winning cards without waiting for his partner to play, his partner may be called upon to take the first trick, and the other cards thus improperly played are exposed cards; it makes no difference whether he plays them one after the other or throws them all on the table together; after the first card is played the others are exposed. 37. A player having an exposed card on the table shall not play until the adversaries have stated whether or not they wish to call that card. If he play another card without waiting, such card shall also be-

38. If any player lead out of his turn, a suit may be called from him or his partner when it is next the turn of either of them to lead. The penalty shall be exacted by the player on the right of the one from whom the suit is called.

39. If a player leads out of turn and the other three follow him, the trick is completed and the error cannot be rectified but if only the second or the second and third players have played to the false lead, the cards improperly played may be taken back, and such cards cannot be called; the original offender, or his partner, is liable to the penalty for leading out of turn.

40. If a player called on to lead a suit have none of it, the penalty is paid.

41. If the third hand plays before the second, the fourth hand may also play before the second. 42. Should the third hand not have played, and the fourth hand have played before his partner, the latter may be called upon to play his highest or lowest card in the suit led, or if he have none, to trump or not to trump the trick. 43. If any one omit playing to a former trick, and such error be not discovered until he has played to the next, the adversaries may claim a new deal; should they de-eide that the deal stand good, the surplus card at the end of the hand shall be considered to have been played to the imperfect trick, but shall not constitute a revoke 44. If any one play two cards to the same trick, or mix the trump card or any other card with a trick to which it does not properly belong, he shall be liable to the same penalty as provided in Rule 26.

45. It is a revoke, when a player holding one or more cards of the suit led, plays card of a different suit. 46. The penalty for a revoke: 1. Is at the option of the adversaries, who at the end of the hand may consult together, and take three tricks from the revoking player and add them to their own; add three points to their own score; or, deduct three points from his score (or all his points, if he has less than three). 2. Can be claimed for as many revokes as occur during the hand. 3. Is applicable only to the score of the game in which it occurs. 4. Cannot be divided, that is, a player cannot add one or two to his own score and deduct one or two from the revoking player. 5. Takes precedence of every other score. 47. A revoke is established if the trick in which it occurs has been turned and quitted, or if either the revoking player or his partner, whether in his right turn or otherwise, lead or play to the tollowing trick.

48. At the end of a hand the claimants of a revoke may search all the tricks. 49. If a player discover his mistake in time to save a revoke, the card improperly played becomes an exposed card. Any player or players who have played after him may withdraw their cards and substitute others. The cards so withdrawn are not liable to be called. 50. If a revoke has been claimed and the accused player or his partner mix the cards before they have been examined to the satisfaction of the adversaries, the revoke shall be deemed established. A revoke may be claimed as soon as perceived, which claim shall be considered notification til they have been examined. 51. A revoke may be claimed at any time before the cards have been presented and cut for the following deal, but not there-52. The revoking player and his partner to the adversaries not to mix the tricks un-may under all circumstances require the hard in which the revoke has been detected to be played out Should the players on both sides subject themselves to the penalty of one or more revokes, neither can win the game; each is punished at the discretion of his adversary as provided in Rule 47. 54. In whatever way the penalty be enforced, under no circumstances can the player win the game by the result of the hand during which he has revoked, and he cannot score more than six.

55. If a player is legally called upon to play the highest or lowest of a suit, or to trump or not to trump a trick, or to lead a suit, or to play a card subject to be called. and unnecessarily fails to comply, he shall be liable to the same penalties as if he had revoked.

56. Any one during the play of a trick and before the cards have been touched for the purpose of gathering them together, may demand that each player draw his 57. If any one, prior to his partner playing, calls attention to the trick in any manner, as by saying that it is his or his adversary's, or by naming his own or his adversary's card, or by placing any of the cards played, without having been law-fully required so to do, his adversaries may require their opponent to play the highest or lowest of the suit then led, or, if he have none, to trump or not to trump the

58. In all cases where a penalty has been incurred, the offender shall await the decision of his adversaries.
59. When a trick has been turned and quitted, it cannot again be seen until after the hand has been played. 60. Should any player say: "I can win the rest," "The rest are all mine," "I have won the game," or use words or signs to that effect, his hand shall be laid upon the table and treated as exposed cards.

71. No conversation shall be indulged in during the play of the hand, except such as is required or permitted by the foregoing
